Time: 09:00 AM – 10:00 AM

Speakers: Rick Tobin

About This Webinar

When inspectors arrive, they don’t only review binders and records. They talk to people. They ask workers what training they received. They ask supervisors how hazards are controlled. They ask whether incidents and near misses are reported. They ask whether employees understand their rights and responsibilities. If the answers are inconsistent, the employer may have a training problem even if the paperwork looks organized.

That’s why inspection readiness training matters. Workers and supervisors need a practical understanding of what the safety program requires, how reporting works, what rights and responsibilities apply, and how their daily actions support due diligence. Training doesn’t replace compliance systems, but it helps those systems work when they’re tested.

This SafetyNow ILT webinar will show how to build inspection readiness into worker and supervisor training. We’ll discuss the key topics inspectors expect people to understand, how to assign refresher training, how to use LMS tracking to show completion, and how SafetyNow ILT helps employers prepare before inspection season exposes gaps.
