Picture This! Water, Electricity and Aluminum Ladders Don’t Mix

If water and electricity don’t mix, the situation becomes a whole lot more dangerous when one adds to it a worker standing barefoot on an aluminum ladder. This picture is commonly seen on the Internet, but not everyone may have viewed it. It’s a shocking reminder that aluminum ladders should never be used while performing any work involving electricity, because of how they conduct electricity. (Original photograph source unknown.)