Prime Contractor Safety Training

Multi-employer worksites are common in construction, oil and gas and other types work. To manage these risks, it’s customary for the owner of the site where the work is carried out to designate one contractor to serve as prime contractor in charge of overseeing and coordinating required safety measures and ensuring compliance with OHS and other applicable laws. This course will cover when a prime contractor is needed, their role, due diligence and more.