

Wage and Hour Recordkeeping Requirements

CONNECTICUT

Most state wage-hour laws have recordkeeping requirements similar to those under the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). In general, the state wage-hour laws require that the following information be preserved for each nonexempt employee:

- name
- address
- occupation
- hours worked each day and week
- amount of compensation paid each pay period
- rate of pay
- age (if the employee is a minor)

The minimum retention period for these records differs from state to state (with 3 years being the most popular), while some states have no record keeping requirements at all.
